

Stonemark Construction Management

Company Philosophy

Nothing replaces the objectivity that comes from an independent construction manager who views the entire project from a clear, unbiased perspective. Stonemark Construction Management has never seen a project where the costs and quality of materials could not be better controlled—and done so without sacrifice to the original vision and functionality of the project. When Stonemark manages a project, construction time is generally reduced and costs of the total project, including their management fees are usually less than if they had never been on board. As the Owner's Representative, Stonemark safeguards the entire construction process and the Client's peace of mind.

Areas of Expertise/Recent Projects

Stonemark has managed major residential & commercial construction projects throughout the US for over 35 years. While they will take care of projects at any level for their clients and their representatives, they excel in large, challenging projects with a high degree of complexity. Their portfolio includes custom homes & residential estates in Montecito, Santa Barbara, Beverly Hills & Pacific Palisades, with notable architects such as Marc Appleton of Appleton & Associates, Russell Shubin and Robin Donaldson of Shubin Donaldson, and William Hefner of Studio William Hefner. Their diverse experience also includes commercial, sacred spaces, not-for-profits, and multi-family residential.
